The Missouri Department of Natural Resources (MoDNR) has assembled this information to assess the susceptibility of drinking water sources to contamination. There are many unforeseen and unpredictable factors that may cause a source to be contaminated. MoDNR routinely monitors all public supplies to ensure public health is protected. Public water systems and local communities are encouraged to take all measures possible to reduce the susceptibility of their drinking water source to chemical contamination. For more information, call 1-800-361-4827.

SURFACE WATER

Raw Source Water Quality Assessment Criteria

Is a system source impaired for any water quality parameters?
Is a system source prone to seasonal algae blooms?
Is a system source vulnerable to excessive sedimentation?
Does a system source contain invasive aquatic vegetative species or organisms?

Historical Monitoring Parameters

Nitrate/Nitrite
VOCs
SOCs
IOC
Algal Toxins
Bacterial, Viral, or other Pathogens

Natural Hazard Assessment Parameters

Is supply capacity vulnerable to periods of extended drought?
Is critical water infrastructure at risk of inundation due to flooding?
Is critical water infrastructure located in an area vulnerable to damage from a large-scale earthquake related to the New Madrid Seismic Zone?

Potential Contaminant Inventory Assessment Parameters

Potential contaminant sites exist within the watershed?
Does the system have the ability to perform continuous, real-time monitoring of water quality at or upstream of its intakes?
Is there a high density of domestic onsite wastewater systems in close proximity to the source or in the watershed?

Additional Assessment Parameters

Is there a watershed management plan for the source watershed (or that includes all or parts of the source watershed) that has been accepted by the Missouri Department of Natural Resources?
Is there a source water protection plan endorsed by the Missouri Department of Natural Resources for the source?
Does the system have an emergency interconnection with a neighboring public water system?
